Pontine Islands

Palmarola

Considered not only the most beautiful island in the Mediterranean Sea, but among the world's most stunning ones. Landscapes like the 'Cathedral', few but beautiful beaches enclosed between spectacular rocky walls, the approach to numerous caves and the great experience to explore its seabed. The environmental importance of the island has led to the creation of a nature reserve that protects its precious uncontaminated nature.

Ponza

There are many natural beauties to visit: Cala Lucia Rosa, where the water is clear and you can enjoy a stunning view of the Faraglioni, Le Formiche, perfect for diving and snorkeling, the Grotte Azzurre, Frontone Beach perfect for young people and sunset beach parties, Grotta degli Smeraldi, Cala Core, unique for beach coves and rock incisions, Le Felci, and the famous, but very crowded during the season, Chiaia di Luna. For the diving we recommend the Punta Papa wreckship.

Ventotene

The destination for lovers of the sea in search of tranquility. Almost deserted coves, country roads crossed almost exclusively by bikes and electric cars, tastes and cuisine of fishermen. Of volcanic origin, crystalline and limpid waters, it is the ideal place for those who want a holiday in close contact with nature.

Phlegrean Islands and Amalfi Coast

Capri

It's formed by two districts: Capri and Anacapri. The island's wildlife is poor but there is an endemic specie, the blue lizard, that exist only in Capri. The only ports of the islands are Marina Grande and the small bay of Marina Piccola. From Marina Grande you can walk to Capri or take the funicular. The Ancient Romans built 12 villas here and it's possible to to visit the remains. The coves and sites that worth a visit are: Cala di Matermania, Cala Ventroso, the White Grotto, the Green Grotto and the most famous, the Blue Grotto.

Ischia

Famous for its thermal springs, the mild climate and it's an international tourist destination. It is characterized by a rich, luxurious vegetation, covering not only the cultivated areas (vineyards), but also the little rocks and the stones, forming the typical green tufa. The main port serves as entrance of the city that extend itself all the way to the Aragonese Castle, dating back the V century B.C. Other harbours are: Casamicciola, Florio d'Ischia and Sant'Angelo.

Procida

The lesser-known of the archipelago, it was probably formed by the eruptions of volcanoes, inactive nowadays. The vertical coast is made of tufa stone, but the inland presents many cultivations and gardens. The main port is Marina di Procida and to the south, there's Corricella, another fishermen's harbour, where the famous movie by Massimo Troisi 'Il Postino' (The Postman) was shot, and Chiaiolella, a lovely village, with its pink and yellow little houses.

Amalfi Coast

From the ninth century it was the first Italian Maritime Republic, together with Genoa, Pisa and Venice. As usual, the regatta of the ancient maritime republics takes place in Amalfi, between May and July. Declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site, a visit to the Cathedral.st representative monument, a place of worship and a pillar of the Amalfi panorama.

Aeolian Islands

Stromboli

More than 900 meters high, is the only active volcano in the world in constant activity for at least 2000 years. Arriving to the island during the night will thrill you with the magnificent spectacle of its eruption.

Panarea

To visit the islet of Basiluzzo, whose cliffs offer a beautiful spectacle, Ansa della Nave, equally beautiful and Lisca Bianca where a very rare phenomenon happens: an underwater solfatara, which continuously emits gas and sulfur salts.

Salina

The island has two small ports: in front of the town of Santa Marina di Salina and Renella: this is a picturesque village situated in the hollow of a natural inlet which was subsequently transformed into a port.

Lipari

The largest of the Aeolian Islands and its beating heart. The island has been modeled by 12 volcanoes: one after the other along the coast there are deep caves, beautiful beaches, wide bays and cliffs.

Vulcano

Consisting of 4 volcanoes, the last eruption, which completely destroyed the entire town, dates back to 1890. East of the island has risen from the sea Vulcanello, linked by an isthmus to Vulcano. Between the two overlook the bays of Porto Levante and Porto Ponente, famous for the warm waters due to submarine sulfur sources caused by the escape of hot gases from the seabed. The coasts, formed by jagged and colored cliffs, are spectacular.

Alicudi and Filicudi

Beautiful island with many sea caves, the most famous is of the "Bue Marino" in Filicudi. The islands are formed by three extinct volcanoes, Their origins make the islands difficult to inhabit and you can approach it only with good weather.
